Victor Emanuel's Entry Into Naples.

NAPLES, Nov. 7.

I am delighted to say that King Victor Emanuel and Garibaldi entered Naples together, as it would have been a grievous thing if, as had been feared, the apostle of Italian liberty, the man of a century, had not been united with the sovereign on this great occasion.

When they left the railway en route for the cathedral, there were Victor Emanuel and Garibaldi on his left hand, and the Pro-Dictators of Sicily and Naples sitting opposite them in the same carriage. The suite followed, and all along the railway to the Duomo there was a perfect ovation. The streets which are very narrow, and scarcely wide enough to admit of more than two persons abreast, were festooned with flowers and evergreens hung from window to window; pictures, tapestry, banners and all the other adjuncts of a great fete in Naples were there, but looking as frate and downcast as heavy rains could make them. On arriving at the Duomo or the cathedral, the piazza of which was beautifully decorated, his Majesty was received by the authorities and conducted to the high altar amid such a storm of shouts and applause as could only be compared to the victor which was raging outside. "Viva Victor Emanuel!" "Viva Garibaldi!" "Viva Italia Unita!"

Such were the cries which rose, not from one, but from a united body of many thousands, who waved their hats and banners, and flags as the royal party advanced to the high altar; and this in the cathedral church of San Januario, the special protector of the Bourbons, whose favor (the saint) Baron Brenier not long since requested as an honor from M. Thouvenel. There was some attempt to silence the multitude, but you might as well have told the waves of the sea to be silent and shouts roar louder and louder by some irresistible necessity which no human power could control.

The King did not take his seat on the throne, but stood a little while, and wiped—aye, even kings perspire—yes, wiped his hands, and then his face, with his handkerchief; and then looked round with that bold, undaunted aspect which indicates an iron nerve. Shortly after the ceremony began, and His Majesty knelt at the prie-dieu, while Garibaldi, the pro-Dictators, Farini, and others stood behind him. The Te Deum was sung in magnificent style; and, as soon as over, the royal party descended from the altar amid the same long-continued and increasing shouts, and went to visit the treasury and the chapel of San Januario, where the blood of the saint is kept. Of course it is to be visited, but who can imagine either of those men bowing down in reverence before this chemical humbug? As soon as the ceremony was over they came down the aisle, and I had an admirable face to face, and as a gleam of sun shone out on the monarch every line was visible. "Humanity" came first and "divinity" after. The difference in the two expressions could not fail to strike the most insensitive. I looked at Victor Emanuel's unsavory face and bold glance, and said—he is the re-galantissimo, true to his word, and ready to maintain it with his sword; but I looked on Garibaldi, and felt all the moral force of his character—most statesman, because he is something much higher—he carries in his face his character, an amiability which wins all hearts and an energy which overcomes all difficulties. The crowd around each was immense, though the soldiers round the church on either side did all they could to keep the path open, but it was all of no use; one of the poorest of the poor laid hold of his sovereign's hand and walked with him; and the people clung to Garibaldi and kissed and embraced him as a father. He was the greater idol in a temple of idols; and so the royal party walked down to the church, and entered their carriages in the midst of the bursts and long-continued storm of applause, as if he were a deity. The King was dressed, let me say, as a general of division, and Garibaldi in the same simple dress in which he had conquered the two Sicilies and given away a kingdom.

THE ASSISTED MIDDLEMAN.—A TRUE STORY.—What says Quill, is more interesting than an officious intermeddler with other people's affairs? One of the most busy of the tribe, was traveling in the cars not long ago, and exercising his talent in a manner at once amusing and mischievous. "Hallo!" cries Mr. Meddler, to a decrepit old gentleman, just as the train was leaving a way-station. "Wake up, and step lively!" This is the place where you want to get out. The old man had barely time to put his foot on the platform of the depot, when the train was again in motion. "Good gracious!" exclaimed Mr. Meddler, on returning to his seat which was next to the one which the old gentleman had occupied. "Good gracious! the old fellow has gone and left his carpet bag!" So he kindly threw it out of the window. Half an hour later, a young man came in from another car and inquired for a missing carpet bag. "It was on this seat," said the stranger, pointing to the spot where the old gentleman had been sitting. "Good gracious," again cried Mr. Meddler. "Why, I thought that carpet bag belonged to the old fellow who got out a while ago, and so I threw it out of the window after him, because I 'possed he'd forget it!" "The devil you did!" said the stranger, with a scowl. "And how came the old man to leave the train?" "Why," said Mr. Meddler, "I thought I heard him say he was going to Middleport, so when we came to the depot, I told him he was there, and had better get out. That's how it was." "You had better have minded your own business," said the young man rather sharply. "That old gentleman was going to Middlebury, to see a dying son, who will now be dead there, probably before his father can get there. That's the result of your officious intermeddling with things that don't concern you. And that carpet bag in my carpet bag, and has got my wedding suit in it. I hadn't been married to-night, if it hadn't been for you. You've damaged a funeral, and spoiled a wedding with your d— nonsense!" And so he bad, sure enough.

Snow in Michigan.—Snow to the depth of eighteen inches, fell on the 24th of November, at Grand Haven, Mich. It had drifted so much upon the track of the Milwaukee and Detroit railroad as to render it necessary to employ three locomotives in drawing one baggage and one passenger car from Grand Haven to Nunda, and two from Grand Rapids. On the Michigan Central, one train was five hours in going from Dowagiac to Kalamazoo, and at the former place, it is reported, they have had as much snow as at any time last winter.

Canal navigation in New York is over for the season, but diligent efforts will be made to get all the boats now on the water to their respective destinations. The income of the season from tolls has been $3,000,000, an increase over last year of $1,250,000.

REPORTED FOR THE DAILY GAZETTE.

BY WISCONSIN STATE TELEGRAPH LINE, Office in Union Passenger Depot.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Dec. 3.

In the house to-day the preamble and resolutions proposing a conference of the southern states at Atlanta on the 20th of February to counsel and advise as to the mode and manner of resistance to the north in the existing exigency, was made the special order for to-morrow. The preamble and resolution take strong grounds in favor of holding all sectional questions finally settled and objects to separate action.

CLASPOW, Dec. 3.
The steamer Peocla is now in the dock. She will come out in about 10 days and proceed to Washington for machinery.

Fifty-three hands were discharged from the navy yard to-day.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.
The news of the political friends of Vice President Breckinridge waited on him Saturday and tendered him a serenade, which he declined.

A consultation is being held to-night between the several delegations of the southern states. The object seems to be the cooperation of the border slave states in the secession movement.

The treasury to-day was unable to pay only about 25 per cent. of the mileage of congressmen.

The projected meeting to night of the union members and senators has been definitely postponed at the request of Mr. Crittenden.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.
A train boy on the C. B. & Q. Railroad, named W. H. Hudson, was arrested yesterday for robbing mails. Notes and drafts amounting to eleven thousand dollars were found in his possession. He was examined before commissioner Hoyno, and held for trial.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 5.
The vote for mayor to-day was a tie. 6 democratic and 3 republican clerks were elected. The common council stands 14 republicans and 4 democrats.

The summary resolution of the John Brown meeting at Tremont Temple to-day is viewed with general satisfaction. The abolitionists were largely out-voted throughout by an assemblage embracing many leading business men. After the chairman had denounced the meeting dissolved, Fred Douglass, Sanborn and a few others, manifested some resistance to the police, and were ejected from the platform and hall. During the uproar Rev. J. Stella Martin announced that a meeting would be held in this church in the evening. In response to this announcement the Baptist church (colored) in day street, was filled at an early hour. The audience was small, and a large portion of the audience was black. Here Wendell Phillips, John Brown, Jr., Fred Douglass and other leading John Brown sympathizers, vented their opinions freely, with little interruption. A woman named Chapman appeared to preside. Several policemen were stationed in the church. Outside there was an immense crowd, and a strong force of police. The disturbance was confined to noisy demonstrations, tho' the crowd seemed very anxious to get hold of Redpath. The meeting broke up about 10 o'clock, and the audience dispersed quietly. Some of the leading spirits were looted at the place passing through the outside crowds, but no violence was committed. The meeting was a success, and the second battalion of infantry was held in readiness at the armory, by order of the mayor. The police force however was amply sufficient, and the day and evening passed with a good natured and patriotic excitement.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4.
Breckinridge's majority over Bell and Douglas is 32,109.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.
The President's message is now being read in congress.

FALL RIVER, Dec. 3.
E. A. Buffington, rep., was re-elected mayor to-day, with the entire republican ticket for the city council.

NEW BRUNSWICK, Dec. 3.
Isaac C. Toby, the citizens' candidate, was re-elected mayor, with a large majority of the city council on the same ticket.

LAWRENCE, Dec. 3.
James R. Baker, rep., elected mayor by 400 majority. The city council is republican.

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 3.
At the town election, to-day, the democrats carried the board of selectmen and a majority of the town officers. The average democratic majority is 40.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.
The Times' Washington correspondent says reliable information from Texas reported the people on the eve of a revolution against the state government. Gov. Houston refused to convene the legislature for the purpose of calling a convention.

It is believed that Senator Cvingman will soon offer a proposition for the peaceable separation of the states and a fair division of the assets and liabilities.

It is rumored that Secretary Thompson resigned Thursday, and will be succeeded by Gov. Pratt of Maryland.

The President has dispatched Mr. Trecent, assistant secretary of state, to South Carolina with copies of the message, being unwilling to trust to possible mistakes from telegraph reports.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.
SENATE.—Messrs. Gwin, Harlan, Johnson of Tenn., Thompson and Wilkinson appeared in their seats.

Prayer was offered by the chaplain. Mr. Bigler, in behalf of the committee to wait on the president, reported that it had performed its duty.

The president's message was delivered by A. J. Glossemer, his private secretary. The message was read.

House.—Chaplain Stockton offered up a prayer that congress may wisely consider the propositions presented in the president's message and deliberately act on them in all righteousness and truth.

The speaker laid before the house the annual estimate of the secretary of the treasury. Referred to committee on ways and means.

Mr. Morehead, from the committee to wait on the president, reported that he had performed that duty, and that the president had requested them to say that he would communicate his message to the house in writing to-day at 1 o'clock.

Mr. Phelps—that hour has already arrived.

or department, dated Nov. 25th, says business of the office has not been interfered with, nor is it likely to be. Montgomery's raid amounts to nothing.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.
The President reviews the history of anti-slavery movement and says all that is necessary to accomplish the object of peace for the slave holding states to be left alone and manage their own domestic institutions in their own way. The mere election of any man to office is not just cause for a dissolution of the Union.

The antecedents of the President (elect) are calculated to excite fears in South Carolina, but is the question of contingent danger sufficient to justify the destruction of the government. He reviews the acts of the different northern states in the passage of personal liberty bills and pronounces them unconstitutional. He says that it should not be presumed in advance that the President elect will fail to enforce the fugitive slave law as this would be unjust and contrary to christian character. Let us wait for the overt act. And then declares against the right of secession and says to admit it the Union might be broken into fragments in less than two weeks. He quotes the language of Jackson and Madison; secession is altogether founded on an inference not in the constitution.

The Union was not designed to be perpetual. He then quotes the constitution in support of this view. The framers of the constitution never intended to plant in its bosom seeds for its own destruction. They were not unmindful of the absurdity of providing for its own dissolution. The right of resistance against tyrannical oppression, however, cannot be denied. This right is asserted in the Declaration of Independence; but secession is neither more nor less than revolution. He speaks of the affairs of South Carolina. He does not apprehend that an attempt will be made to seize the fort, but if in this he is mistaken, the officers have orders to act strictly on the defensive. Let the responsibility rest on the heads of those who provoke the contest. He invokes his countrymen to pause before attempting to destroy the Union which has conferred so many benefits. He argues that congress can do much to restore peace by proposing and recommending an amendment to the constitution for remedying the existing evils.

The very course he recommends is to have an explanatory clause or amendment of the slavery question; 1st. Expressly recognizing the right of property in slaves in states where slavery now or may hereafter exist. 2d. The duty of protecting such rights in all the coming territories, until the latter are admitted into the Union. 3d. A like recognition.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.
Collector Schell arrived last evening with the President's Message.

The Herald's Washington correspondent says the conclusion is nearly unanimous among republicans, that no compromise will come from their side; also that Ames Kendall may be offered a seat in the Cabinet.

The idea of a National Convention being called by congress is not received favorably by other parties.

THE WINTER CAMPAIGN HAS FULLY OPENED.
Thanksgiving passed away to the satisfaction of all except the turkeys. Our High School closed its fall term on the 23d inst., with a public exhibition, which was conducted in a manner creditable to teachers and scholars. The pieces recited were selected with good taste, and spoken with distinctness and in some instances gracefully. The singing by the Johnstown Glee Singers was of a first rate order. The prospect for a large attendance and an interest corresponding, for the winter term—which commences next Monday—are highly flattering. Our district school also begins its winter term at the same time, with an experienced and successful teacher, and as bright-eyed a lot of children. Mr. Editor, as you will find in the country.

Our young people have inaugurated a "sociable" for the improvement of their minds, and their social qualities. A happy idea which proves that young folks can assemble and have a "good time" without resorting to "tripping the light fantastic toe," or indulging in the low sports which characterize too many assemblies in the country.

Next Tuesday commences the session here of Rock Conference, a meeting of the ministers and laymen of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches of this country. A time of religious interest is expected.

The Sunday School of the Congregational church here have commenced a series of monthly concerts, consisting of singing, speaking pieces, and readings, which are exerting a happy influence on the school, and doing much to sustain it—for the first time—through the winter. The coldness finds the farmers generally prepared for it.

DOT.
MAN AND HIS TWO SONS DROWNED.—We learn from the Wisconsin that a man named Dennis Kanary, and his two sons, one about four and the other about six years of age, were drowned near the foot of Middle street, near Wolf & Lawrence's dry dock in Milwaukee. They had been down to the third ward visiting, and were on their way home in the second ward. The father was a sober, industrious man, and the probabilities are that they were looking at the old wreck of the Nile, which is upon the dry dock, when the ice gave way and they were drowned. The bodies were recovered. A wife and two children are left behind.

A writer in the Charleston Courier, who is in favor of secession, is troubled about the subject of the slave trade, which he fears may weaken the councils of the disunionists, and affect the position of some of the frontier states. One of the leading motives of secession, however, is the earnest leaders of that movement, is the re-opening of the African slave trade.

A drunken Englishman in Manchester, N. H., was seized with a fit of vomiting at night or two since, and dislocated his lower jaw in the operation. A physician relieved him from this unpleasant consequence of his spree.

No Compromise.

We are glad to learn by the telegraphic despatches to-day that the republicans at Washington are not likely to present any compromise to the south. As a party, the republicans have done nothing, and propose to do nothing, that shall interfere in any manner with the institutions or the interests of any southern state; but mean to live up to the requirements of the constitution, as it was understood and construed by the statesmen who framed it. They have, therefore, nothing upon which to base a compromise. The only offense charged against them, as a party, is the election of Mr. Lincoln to the presidency, and they are not prepared to advise him to decline an inauguration to please the malcontents of South Carolina and Georgia.

Kansas.

True to their instincts, many of the democratic papers are asserting that there is no scarcity of food or distress in Kansas, and that the contributions for the relief of the settlers are in part composed of arms and ammunition for the purpose of carrying on a war in the territory and upon the adjoining states. The causes of the arming of Montgomery and his band are persistently kept from view, and the number of his men and the extent of his operations grossly exaggerated. The first reports from the territory, which bore on their face the evidence of a design to invite a hostile demonstration against the settlers by the federal government, and which was followed by an order to the brutal Gen. Harney to "exterminate Montgomery and his men," no sooner reached the scene of the asserted outrages, then prompt contradictions came from reliable sources. We annex a couple of them:

LAWRENCE, K. T., Nov. 28. The whole country is impeded up by the reports of the Kansas difficulties. I abjure all to await the facts before judging. Judge Williams, who has so deceived the public, is a frightened old dotard, unworthy of credence. His court has not been molested; Fort Scott has not been attacked; Paris, or any other place has not been sacked; Montgomery's party has not entered Missouri, and never intended to; not one cent has been given him, or his men, from recent eastern contributions; no arms or munitions have been sent them, as reported. All their arms have been in the territories for years, and I challenge contrary proof. All such statements as Williams has made are vile fabrications, that are doing our people infinite wrong. Let the people charge it either to his malice or ignorance. It is admitted, however, that exciting events are upon us.

Special dispatch to the N. Y. Tribune. LEAVENWORTH, Nov. 27. Mr. Jones, residing at Leavenworth, reports that Acting Gov. Beebe has visited Captain Montgomery, at his home. He denied any intention of invading the states or breaking up the courts. He acknowledged the Governor's authority, and, upon request, released the prisoners whom they were trying for kidnapping. He stated that he had only forty men; that he had hung three men for kidnapping, and was responsible for it. Gov. Medary thinks the matter can be settled without troops.

We hope the sympathizing friends of the suffering people of Kansas will not remit the efforts or lessen the contributions for their relief. The appeal is a worthy one, the suffering exists in too sad reality, and the response should be prompt, cheerful and generous.

P. S. Our telegraphic despatches to-day confirm the previous reports of the frivolous character of the pretended outrages by Montgomery and his men.

SPEAKER OF THE ASSEMBLY.—We notice that among others, the Albany, Green Co. Times speaks of Alexander Graham, member of the assembly from this city, as a candidate for the speakership. Mr. G. would make an excellent speaker. He has had legislative experience, he is a good business man, quick and accurate in his perception, and cool and calm in his judgment. With such qualifications, we think the suggestion of his name for the speakership should be favorably considered by the republican members of the assembly.

SORGHUM SYRUP.—The Madison Patriot says it has received from Joseph Vroman, of Stoner's Prairie, a sample of sorghum syrup manufactured by him, from stalks raised on his farm the past season. The syrup is a heavy article, and in color and flavor will compare favorably with any article of the kind, manufactured from sugar cane, that we have ever used. Mr. Vroman manufactured the syrup himself, and the product was at the rate of about 175 gallons to the acre, costing from 23 to 25 cents per gallon. With such evidence of success in that branch of home industry and economy, we cannot but believe that the manufacture of sorghum syrup will yet become a part of every farmer's labor, and be a source of profit and general convenience.

SNOW IN MICHIGAN.—Snow to the depth of eighteen inches, fell on the 24th of November, at Grand Haven, Mich. It had drifted so much upon the track of the Milwaukee and Detroit railroad as to render it necessary to employ three locomotives in drawing one baggage and one passenger car from Grand Haven to Nunnia, and two from Nunnia to Kalamazoo, and at the former place, it is reported, they have had as much snow as at any time last winter.

Canal navigation in New York is over for the season, but diligent efforts will be made to get all the boats now on the water to their respective destinations. The income of the season from tolls has been $3,000,000, an increase over last year of $1,250,000.

The United States consularship at Naples has been held by one man, a Mr. Hamet, for fifty-one years. He entered upon his duties the very year Mr. Lincoln was born.

NAPLES, Nov. 7. I am delighted to say that King Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi entered Naples together, for it would have been a grievous thing if, as had been feared, the apostle of Italian liberty, the man of a century, had not been united with the sovereign on this great occasion. On arriving at the Duomo or the cathedral, the piazza of which was beautifully decorated, his Majesty was received by the authorities and conducted to the high altar amid such a storm of shouts and applause as could only be compared to the storm which was raging outside. A Viva Victor Emmanuel! a Viva Garibaldi! a Viva Italia! Unita!

Such were the cries which rose, not from one, but from a united body of many thousands, who waved their hats and banners, and sang the national hymn, as the king and his suite ascended the steps of the cathedral church of San Januario, the special protector of the Bourbons, whose favor (the saints) Baron Brenner not long since requested as an honor from M. Thouvenel. There was some attempt to silence the multitude, but you might as well have told the waves of the sea to be silent and the stars to be extinguished, for the people were too numerous and too determined to be silenced. The King did not take his seat on the throne, but stood a little below it, and wiped his eyes, even kings perspire—yes, wiped his hands, and then his face, with his handkerchief; and then looked round with that bold, undaunted aspect which indicates an iron nerve.

Shortly after the ceremony began, and His Majesty knelt at the prie-Dieu, while Garibaldi, the pro-Dictators, Ruffini, and others stood behind him. As soon as the ceremony was over they came down the side, and I had an admirable view of the King and the Liberator face to face, and as a gleam of sun shone out on the monarch's very line of countenance, "Humanity" came first and "Divinity" after. The difference in the two expressions could not fail to strike the most insensible. I looked at Victor Emmanuel's unvarying face and bold glance, and said—he is the re galantuomo, true to his word, and ready to maintain it with his sword; but I looked on Garibaldi, and felt all the moral grandeur of his character—not a statesman, because he is something much higher—he carries in his face his character, an amiability which wins all hearts and an energy which overcomes all difficulties. The crowd around each was immense, though the soldiers round the church on either side did all they could to keep the path open, but it was all of no use; one of the poorest of the poor laid hold of his sovereign's hand and walked with him; and the people clung to Garibaldi and kissed and embraced him as a father. He was the greater idol in a temple of idols; and so the royal party walked down to the church, and entered their carriages in the midst of the bursts and long-continued shouts and acclamations. The King was dressed, let me say as a general of division, and Garibaldi in the same simple dress in which he had conquered the two Sicilies and given away a kingdom.

THE ASTONISHED MEDDLER.—A True Story.—What, says Quill, is more intolerable than an officious intermeddler with other people's affairs? One of the most busy of the tribe was traveling in the train a long ago, and exercising his talent in a long, and once amusing and mischievous. "Hallo!" cries Mr. Meddler, to a decrepit old gentleman, just as the train was leaving a way-station. "Wake up, and step lively! This is the place where you want to get out." The old man had barely time to put his tottering legs on the platform of the depot, when the train was again in motion. "Good gracious!" exclaimed Mr. Meddler, on returning to his seat which was next to the one which the old gentleman had occupied. "Good gracious! the old fellow has gone and left his carpet bag!" "So?" said the stranger. "Why, I thought I heard him say he was going to Middleport, so when we came to the depot, I told him he was there, and had better get out. That's how it was." "You had better get out, that's how it was," said the young man rather sharply. "That old gentleman was going to Middleport, to see a dying son, who will now be dead and buried, probably before his father can get there. That's one of the results of your officious intermeddling with things that don't concern you. And that carpet bag is my carpet bag, and has got my wedding suit in it. I don't want it for you. You've damaged a funeral, and spoiled a wedding with your d—d nonsense!" And so he had, better get enough.—Boston Post.

A bust of the eminent historian American, Mr. Motley, had been placed in the new imperial library of the Louvre.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Dec. 3. In the house to-day the preamble and resolution proposing a conference of the southern states at Atlanta on the 20th of February to consider and advise as to the mode and manner of resistance to the north in the existing emergency, was made the special order for to-morrow. The preamble and resolution take strong grounds in favor of having all sectional questions finally settled and objects to separate action.

GASPORT, Dec. 3. The steamer Peola is now in the dock. She will come out in about 10 days and proceed to Washington for machinery.

Fifty-three hands were discharged from the navy yard to-day. Some of the political friends of Vice President Breckinridge waited on him Saturday and tendered him a serenade, which he declined. A consultation is being held to-night between the several delegations of the southern states. The object seems to be the cooperation of the border slave states in the secession movement.

The treasury to-day was unable to pay only about 25 per cent. of the mileage of congressmen.

The projected meeting to-night of the union members and senators has been indefinitely postponed at the request of Mr. Crittenden.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4. A train boy on the C. & N. W. Railroad, named W. E. Hudson, was arrested yesterday for robbing mails. Notes and drafts amounting to eleven thousand dollars were found in his possession. He was examined before commissioner Hoyne, and held for trial.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 5. The vote for mayor to-day was a tie. 5 democratic and 3 republican aldermen were elected. The common council stands 14 republicans and 4 democrats.

The summary dissolution of the John Brown meeting at Tremont Temple to-day is viewed with general satisfaction. The abolitionists were largely out-voted throughout by an assemblage embracing many leading business men. After the chairman had pronounced the meeting dissolved, Fred. Douglas, Sanborn and a few others manifested some resistance to the police, and were ejected from the platform and hall. During the uproar Rev. J. Stella Martin announced that a meeting would be held in his church in the evening. In response to this announcement the Baptist church (colored) in Jay street, was filled at an early hour. The edifice was small, and a large portion of the audience were black. Here Wendell Phillips, John Brown, Jr., Fred. Douglas and other leading John Brown sympathizers, vented their opinions freely, with little interruption. A woman named Chayman appeared to preside. Several propositions were stated to the church. Outside there was an immense crowd, and a strong force of police. The disturbance was confined to noisy demonstrations, the crowd seemed very anxious to get hold of Redpath. The meeting broke up about 10 o'clock, and the audience dispersed quietly. Some of the leading spirits were looted at while passing through the outside crowds, but no violence was committed. Frank B. Sanborn was voting President of the meeting. In anticipation of a riot, the second battalion of infantry was held in readiness at the armory, by order of the mayor. The police force however was amply sufficient, and the day and evening passed with a good natured and patriotic excitement.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4. Breckinridge's majority over Bell and Douglas is 32,109.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. The President's message is now being read in congress.

FALL RIVER, Dec. 3. E. A. Buffington, rep., was re-elected mayor to-day, with an entire republican ticket for the city council.

NEW BEDFORD, Dec. 3. Isaac C. Toby, the citizens' candidate, was re-elected mayor, with a large majority of the city council on the same ticket.

LAWRENCE, Dec. 3. James R. Baker, rep., elected mayor by 400 majority. The city council is republican.

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 3. At the town election, to-day, the democrats carried the board of selectmen and a majority of the town officers. The average democratic majority is 40.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. The Times' Washington correspondent says reliable information from Texas reported the people on the eve of a revolution against the state government. Gov. Houston refused to convene the legislature for the purpose of calling a convention.

It is believed that Senator Clingman will soon offer a proposition for the peaceable separation of the states and a fair division of the assets and liabilities.

It is rumored that Secretary Thompson resigned Thursday, and will be succeeded by Gov. Pratt of Maryland.

The president has despatched Mr. Trevelick, assistant secretary of state, to South Carolina with copies of the message, being unwilling to trust to possible mistakes from telegraph reports.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. SENATE.—Messrs. Gwin, Harlan, Johnson of Tenn., Thompson and Wilkinson appeared in their seats.

Prayer was offered by the chaplain. Mr. Bigler, in behalf of the committee to wait on the president, reported that he had performed its duty.

The president's message was delivered by A. J. Glessner, his private secretary. The message was read.

House.—Chaplain Stockton offered up a prayer that congress may wisely consider the propositions presented in the president's message and deliberately act on them in all righteousness and truth.

The speaker laid before the house the annual estimate of the secretary of the treasury. Referred to committee on ways and means.

Mr. Morehead, from the committee to wait on the president, reported that they had performed that duty, and that the president had requested them to say that he would communicate his message to the house in writing to-day at 1 o'clock.

Mr. Phelps—that hour has already arrived.

After some further proceedings, the message was laid before the house and read by Col. Forney, the speaker having first requested gentlemen to be silent.

CHARLESTON, Dec. 3. The conviction that coercion will be attempted creates speculation concerning the strength of the government defenses.—Fort Moultrie and Pickens are considered weak, but Fort Sumpter a place of great strength.

Naval estimates for the year are over $11,000,000.

The President's Message makes eight columns of the Constitution newspaper; three and a half columns of it are devoted to secession.

Despatches from Fort Scott to the interior

or department, dated Nov. 25th, says business of the office has not been interfered with, nor is it likely to be. Montgomery's raid amounts to nothing.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. The President reviews the history of anti-slavery movement and says all that is necessary to accomplish the object of peace is for the slave holding states to be let alone and manage their own domestic institutions in their own way. The mere election of any man to office is not just cause for a dissolution of the Union.

The antecedents of the President (elect) are calculated to excite fears in South Carolina but is the question of contingent danger sufficient to justify the destruction of the government. He reviews the acts of the different northern states in the passage of personal liberty bills and pronounces them unconstitutional. He says that it should not be presumed in advance that the President elect will fail to enforce the fugitive slave law as this would be unjust and contrary to christian character. Let us wait for the overt act. And then declares against the right of secession and says to admit it the Union might be broken into fragments in less than two weeks. He quotes the language of Jackson and Madison; secession is altogether founded on an inference not in the constitution.

The Union was designed to be perpetual. He then quotes the constitution in support of this view. The framers of the constitution never intended to plant in its bosom seeds for its own destruction. They were not unmindful of the absurdity of providing for its own dissolution. The right of resistance against tyranny and oppression, however, cannot be denied. This right is asserted in the Declaration of Independence; but secession is neither more nor less than revolution. He speaks of the affairs of South Carolina. He does not apprehend that an attempt will be made to seize the fort, but if in this he is mistaken, the officers have orders to act strictly on the defensive. Let the responsibility rest on the heads of those who provoke the contest. He invokes his countrymen to pause before attempting to destroy the Union which has conferred so many benefits. He argues that congress can do much to restore peace by proposing and recommending an amendment to the constitution for remedying the existing evils. The very course he recommends is to have an explanatory clause or amendment of the slavery question; 1st. Expressly recognizing the right of property in slaves in states where slavery now or may hereafter exist. 2d. The duty of protecting such rights in all the coming territories, until the latter are admitted into the Union. 3d. A lik recognition.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. Collector Schell arrived last evening with the President's message.

The Herald's Washington correspondent says the conclusion is nearly unanimous among republicans, that no compromise will come from their side; also that Amos Kendall may be offered a seat in the Cabinet. The idea of a National Convention being called by congress is not received favorably by other parties.

For the Janesville Gazette. Dettings from Johnston.

THE WINTER CAMPAIGN HAS FULLY OPENED. Thanksgiving passed away to the satisfaction of all except the turkeys. Our High School closed its fall term on the 23d inst., with a public exhibition, which was conducted in a manner creditable to teachers and scholars. The pieces recited were selected with good taste, and spoken with distinctness and in some instances gracefully. The singing by the Johnstown Glee Singers was of a first rate order. The prospect for a large attendance and an interest corresponding, for the winter term—which commences next Monday—are highly flattering. Our district school also begins its winter term at the same time, with an experienced and successful teacher, and as bright-eyed a lot of children, Mr. Editor, as you will find in the country.

Our young people have inaugurated a "sociable" for the improvement of their minds, and their social qualities. A happy idea which proves that young folks can assemble and have a "good time" without resorting to "tripping the light fantastic toe," or indulging in the low sports which characterizes too many assemblies in the country.

Next Tuesday commences the session here of Rock Conference, a meeting of the ministers and laymen of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches of this country. A time of religious interest is expected.

The Sunday School of the Congregational church here have commenced a series of monthly concerts, consisting of singing, speaking pieces, and readings, which are exerting a happy influence on the school, and doing much to sustain it—for the first time—through the winter. The coldness finds the farmers generally prepared for it. D. O. T.

MAX AND HIS TWO SONS DROWNED.—We learn from the Wisconsin that a man named Dennis Kanary, and his two sons, one about four and the other about six years of age, were drowned near the foot of Middle street, near Wolf & Lawrence's dry dock in Milwaukee. They had been down to the third ward visiting, and were on their way home in the second ward. The father was a sober, industrious man, and the probabilities are that they were looking at the old wreck of the Nile, which is upon the dry dock, when the ice gave way and they were drowned. The bodies were recovered. A wife and two children are left behind.

A writer in the Charleston Courier, who is in favor of secession, is troubled about the subject of the slave trade, which he fears may weaken the councils of the disunionists, and affect the position of some of the frontier states. One of the leading motives of secession, however, with the earnest leaders of that movement, is the re-opening of the African slave trade.

A drunken Englishman in Manchester, N. H., was seized with a fit of vomiting a night or two since, and dislocated his lower jaw in the operation. A physician relieved him from this unpleasant consequence of his spree.

EXAMINATION OF MAPES.—Daniel Mapes was brought before the police court yesterday for examination as to his connection with the death of his wife. (We were in error in stating that he was committed for trial when noticing his arrest; he was committed for examination.) Police justice Constock adjourned the examination until the 13th inst., to give the grand jury an opportunity to act upon the case. We learn that his daughter Eunice, a girl 15 years of age, was arrested Saturday evening, on a complaint of being accessory to her mother's death. She was brought before the court yesterday, and her examination also postponed until the 13th inst.

The body of Mrs. Mapes was disinterred this morning for the purpose of a post-mortem examination. We have not heard the result.

OLD FRIENDS.—The public's old-time friends, Bennett & Boswick, are prepared for a vigorous campaign in the sale of goods. A long course of honorable dealing and the invariable possession of a choice stock, have fully established this firm in the confidence and good will of the community. Their trade is satisfactory to themselves in its amount as well as to their customers in its character.

GALENA RAILROAD.—On and after this date, trains on the Galena and Chicago Union Rail Road leave at 8:05 A. M. and arrive at 7:05 P. M.

CLOTHING.—Moses Harsh, of the "Young America Clothing House," continues his heavy sales of ready-made clothing, and the reason is, that his goods are of the best quality and make and are sold at low prices. Mr. Harsh has recently engaged the services of that experienced, tasteful and well-known cutter, Mr. Treat; so that those who want admirable fits and genteel garments can be accommodated at all times.

WATER REPAIRING.—Mr. Amsen, who has been for some years employed in this city, has opened a repairing shop near the post office. His advertisement will be found in another column.

1780 BUSHELS OF WHEAT ON 15 ACRES.—In passing through North Geneva the other day, we called at the farm of David Williams, and among other things we saw his crop of wheat, which he had just got husked and secured. He raised 1780 bushels of ears on fifteen measured acres. The seed which he planted was bred by himself, and was a cross of yellow dent and Oregon shoe-peg. We have an ear in our office which weighs a pound and five ounces, and we saw others fully as large. If any one can beat that we should like to know it.—Elkhorn (Waltham Co.) Independent.

This is a good story, but cannot somebody in Rock county beat it?

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.—The board of normal school regents for Wisconsin will receive proposals from any city, town or village, for the establishment of a state normal school, as provided in section 14 of chapter 22 of the revised statutes. Proposals or letters of inquiry may be addressed to the secretary.

Publishers of papers in the state will confer a favor by giving this notice an insertion.

SILAS CHAPMAN, Secretary, Milwaukee, Wis.

The presidential electors meet at Madison to-morrow, the 5th.

The Madison Patriot says that the result of the late school land sales has been the sale of about 300 forty acre lots out of the 12,000 offered.

A YANKEE GIRL'S ASTONISHMENT.—A young lady from Vermont, teaching in a town in Georgia, writes to her parents thus: "The people here are very much excited over the election of Mr. Lincoln. Yesterday they formed a military company among the young men, with a view to the exciting of the hour, and to-day they came out to drill. The most remarkable part of that performance to a Yankee girl was to see each soldier have a negro slave to carry his gun."

REMOVAL.

No Compromise.

We are glad to learn by the telegraphic despatches to-day that the Republicans at Washington are not likely to present any compromise to the south. As a party, the Republicans have done nothing, and propose to do nothing, that shall interfere in any manner with the institutions of the interest of any southern state; but mean to live up to the requirements of the constitution, as it is understood and construed by the statesmen who framed it. They have, therefore, nothing upon which to base a compromise. The only offence charged against them, as a party, is the election of Mr. Lincoln to the presidency, and they are not prepared to advise him to decline an inauguration to please the malcontents of South Carolina and Georgia.

Kansas.

True to their instincts, many of the democratic papers are asserting that there is no scarcity of food or distress in Kansas, and that the contributions for the relief of the settlers are in part composed of arms and ammunition for the purpose of carrying on a war in the territory and upon the adjoining states. The causes of the arming of Montgomery and his band are, persistently kept from view, and the number of his men and the extent of his operations grossly exaggerated. The first reports from the territory, which bore on their face the evidence of a design to invite a hostile demonstration against the settlers by the federal government, and which was followed by an order to the brutal Gen. Harney to "exterminate Montgomery and his men," no sooner reached the scene of the asserted outrages, than prompt contradictions came from reliable sources. We annex a couple of them:

LAWRENCE, K. T., Nov. 28.
The whole country is imposed upon by the reports of the Kansas difficulties. I abjure all to await the facts before judging. Judge Williams, who has so deceived the public, is a frightened old dotard, unworthy of credence. His court has not been molested; Fort Scott has not been attacked; Paris, or any other place has not been sacked; Montgomery's party has not entered Missouri, nor intended to; not one cent has been given him, or his men, from recent eastern contributions; no arms or munitions have been sent them, as reported. All their arms have been in the territories for years, and I challenge contrary proof. All such statements as Williams has made are vile fabrications, that are doing our people infinite wrong. Let the people charge it either to his malice or ignorance. It is admitted, however, that exciting events are upon us. W. H. HUTCHINSON.

Special dispatch to the N. Y. Tribune.
LEAVENWORTH, Nov. 27.
Mr. Jones, register at Leavenworth, reports that Acting Gov. Beebe has visited Captain Montgomery, at his home. He denied any intention of invading the states or breaking up the courts. He acknowledged the Governor's authority, and, upon request, released prisoners whom they were trying for kidnapping. He stated that he had only forty men, that he had hung three men for kidnapping, and was responsible for it. Gov. Medary thinks the matter can be settled without troops.

We hope the sympathizing friends of the suffering people of Kansas will not remit the efforts or lessen the contributions for their relief. The appeal is a worthy one, the suffering exists in too sad reality, and the response should be prompt, cheerful and generous.
P. S. Our telegraphic despatches to-day confirm the previous reports of the frivolous character of the pretended outrages by Montgomery and his men.

SPEAKER OF THE ASSEMBLY.—We notice that among others, the Albany, Green Co. Times speaks of Alexander Graham, member of the assembly from this city, as a candidate for the speakership. Mr. G. would make an excellent speaker. He has had legislative experience, he is a good business man, quick and accurate in his perception, and cool and calm in his judgment. With such qualifications, we think the suggestion of his name for the speakership should be favorably considered by the republican members of the assembly.

SORGHUM STRUCK.—The Madison Patriot says it has received from Joseph Vroman, of Stoner's Prairie, a sample of sorghum syrup manufactured by him, from stalks raised on his farm the past season. The syrup is a heavy article, and in color and flavor will compare favorably with any article of the kind, manufactured from sugar cane, that we have ever used. Mr. Vroman manufactured the syrup himself, and the product was at the rate of about 175 gallons to the acre, costing from 23 to 25 cents per gallon. With such evidence of success in that branch of home industry and economy, we cannot but believe that the manufacture of sorghum syrup will yet become a part of every farmer's labor, and be a source of profit and general convenience.

SNOW IN MICHIGAN.—Snow to the depth of eighteen inches, fell on the 24th of November, at Grand Haven, Mich. It had drifted so much upon the track of the Milwaukee and Detroit railroad as to render it necessary to employ three locomotives in drawing one baggage and one passenger car from Grand Haven to Nuncia, and two from Grand Rapids. On the Michigan Central, one train was five hours in going from Dowagiac to Kalamazoo, and at the former place, it is reported, they have had as much snow as at any time last winter.

Canal navigation in New York is over for the season, but diligent efforts will be made to get all the boats now on the water to their respective destinations. The income of the season from tolls has been $3,000,000, an increase over last year of $1,250,000.

The United States consular at Naples has been held by one man, a Mr. Hamet, for fifty-one years. He entered upon his duties the very year Mr. Lincoln was born.

Correspondence of the London Daily News.

Victor Emanuel's Entry into Naples.

NAPLES, Nov. 7.
I am delighted to say that both King Victor Emanuel and Garibaldi entered Naples together, for it would have been a grievous thing if, as had been feared, the apostle of Italian liberty, the man of a century, had not been received with the sovereign on this great occasion.
When they left the railway en route for the cathedral, there were Victor Emanuel and Garibaldi on his left hand, and the Pro-Dictators of Sicily and Naples sitting opposite them in the same carriage. The suite followed, and all along, the railway to the Duomo there was a perfect ovation. The streets which were narrow and dark, and which were crowded with more than two hundred persons, were festooned with flowers and evergreens hung from window to window; pictures, tapestry, banners and all the other adjuncts of a great feast in Naples were there, but looking as a bride and dowry as heavy rains could make them. On arriving at the Duomo or the cathedral, the piazza of which was beautifully decorated, his Majesty was received by the authorities and conducted to the high altar amid such a storm of shouts and applause as could only be compared to the storm which was raging outside. "Viva Victor Emanuel!" "Viva Garibaldi!" "Viva Italia Unita!"

Such were the cries which rose, not from one, but from a united body of many thousands, who waved their hats and banners and flags, and the royal party advanced to the high altar; and this is in the cathedral church of San Januario, the special protector of the Bourbons, whose favor (the saint) Baron Brenner not long since requested as an honor from Mr. Thouvenel. There was some attempt to silence the multitude, but they would not be silenced, and the voices of the sea, to be silent and should rise louder and louder by some irresistible necessity which no human power could control.

The King did not take his seat on the throne, but stood a little below it, and wiped away, eye, eye, perspiration, yes, wiped his hands, and then his face, with his handkerchief; and then looked round with that bold, unflinching aspect which indicates an iron nerve.

Shortly after the ceremony began, and His Majesty knelt at the prie-Dieu, while Garibaldi, the pro-Dictators, Farini, and others stood behind him. The Te Deum was sung in magnificent style; and as soon as over, the royal party descended from the altar amid the same long-continued and increasing shouts, and went to visit the treasury of the church of San Januario, where the blood of the saint is kept. Of course it was to be visited, but who can imagine either of those men bowing down in reverence before this chemical lump?
As soon as the ceremony was over they came down the side, and I had an admirable view of the King and the Liberator face to face, and as a gleam of sun shone out on the monarch every line was visible. "Humility" came first and "Dignity" after. The difference in the two expressions could not fail to strike the most insensitive. I looked at Victor Emanuel's unvarying face and bold glance, and said—he is the real Januario, true to his word, and ready to maintain it with his sword; but I looked on Garibaldi, and felt all the moral grandeur of his character—not a statesman, because he is something much higher—he carries in his face his character, an amiability which wins all hearts and an energy which overcomes all difficulties. The crowd around each was immense, though the soldiers round the church on either side did all they could to keep the path open, but it was all of no use; one of the poorest of the poor laid hold of his sovereign's hand and walked with him; and the people clung to Garibaldi and kissed him, and one said to him as a father. He was the greater idol in a temple of idols; and so the royal party walked down to the church, and entered their carriages in the midst of the bursts and long-continued storms of applause, as heretofore. The King was dressed, let me say, as a general of division, and Garibaldi in the same simple dress in which he had conquered the two Sicilies and given away a kingdom.

THE ASTONISHED MEDDLER.—A TRUE STORY.—What says Quilp, is more intolerable than an officious intermeddler with other people's affairs? One of the most busy of the tribe was traveling in the cars not long ago, and exercising his talent in a manner at once amusing and mischievous. "Hallo!" cries Mr. Meddler, to a decrepit old gentleman, just as the train was leaving the station. "Wake up, and stop lying!" This the place where you want to get out!" The old man had barely time to put his tottering legs on the platform of the depot, when the train was again in motion. "Good gracious!" exclaimed Mr. Meddler, on returning to his seat, "what was next to the one which the old gentleman had occupied by the old fellow has gone and left his carpet bag and one kind of thing out of his window. Half an hour later, a young man came in from another car and inquired for a missing carpet bag. "It was on this seat," said the stranger, pointing to the spot where the old gentleman had been sitting. "Good gracious," again cried Mr. Meddler, "why I thought that carpet bag belonged to the old fellow who got out of the window, and I thought I threw it out of his window. EXAMINATION OF MAPES.—Daniel Mapes was brought before the police court yesterday for examination as to his connection with the death of his wife. (We were in error in stating that he was committed for trial when noticing his arrest; he was committed for examination.) Police justice Comstock adjourned the examination until the 13th inst., to give the grand jury an opportunity to act upon the case. We learn that his daughter Eunice, a girl 15 years of age, was arrested Saturday evening, on a complaint of being accessory to her mother's death. She was brought before the court with her father, and her examination also postponed until the 13th inst.

The body of Mrs. Mapes was disinterred this morning for the purpose of a post-mortem examination. We have not heard the result.

OLD FRIENDS.—The public's old-time friends, Bennett & Bostwick, are prepared for a vigorous campaign in the sale of goods. A long course of honorable dealing and the invariable possession of a choice stock, have fully established this firm in the confidence and good will of the community. Their trade is satisfactory to themselves in its amount as well as to their customers in its character.

GALENA RAILROAD.—On and after this date, trains on the Galena and Chicago Union Rail Road leave at 8:05 A. M. and arrive at 7:05 P. M.

CLOTHING.—Moses Harsh, of the "Young America Clothing House," continues his heavy sales of ready-made clothing, and the reason is, that his goods are of the best quality and make and are sold at low prices. Mr. Harsh has recently engaged the services of that experienced, tasteful and well-known cutter, Mr. Treat; so that those who want admirable fits and genteel garments can be accommodated at all times.

WATCH REPAIRING.—Mr. Aaman, who has been for some years employed in this city, has opened a repairing shop near the post office. His advertisement will be found in another column.

1780 BUSHELS OF WHEAT ON 15 ACRES.—In passing through North Geneva, the other day, we called at the farm of David Williams, and among other things we saw his crop of corn, which he had just got husked and secured. He raised 1780 bushels of ears on fifteen measured acres. The seed which he planted was bred by himself, and was a cross of yellow dent and Oregon shoe-peg. We have an ear in our office which weighs a pound and five ounces, and we saw others fully as large. If any one can beat that we should like to know it. Elkhorn (Waterbury Co.) Independent.

This is a good story, but cannot somebody in Rock county beat it?

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.—The board of normal school regents for Wisconsin will receive proposals from any city, town or village, for the establishment of a state normal school, as provided in section 14 of chapter 22 of the revised statutes. Proposals or letters of inquiry may be addressed to the secretary.

Publishers of papers in the state will confer a favor by giving this notice an insertion.

SILAS CHAPMAN, Secretary, Milwaukee, Wis.

The presidential electors meet at Madison to-morrow, the 5th.

The Madison Patriot says that the result of the late school land sales has been the sale of about 300 forty acre lots out of the 12,000 offered.

A YANKEE GIRL'S ASTONISHMENT.—A young lady from Vermont, teaching in a town in Geneva, writes to her parents thus: "The people here are very much excited over the election of Mr. Lincoln. Yesterday they formed a military company among the young men, with a view to the exigencies of the hour, and today they came out to drill. The most remarkable part of that performance to a Yankee girl was to see each soldier have a negro along to carry his gun."

REMOVAL.

B. Bornheim will, in a few days, remove into one of the stores in Myer's new block, where he will be prepared to give additional attention to his customers in the sale of the best stock of clothing in Rock county.
